Disabled Riders Stranded

MetroAccess received millions in bonuses despite abuses

WASHINGTON | The $51 million budget for MetroAccess, Metro's transportation program for the disabled, is nearly three times the figure it was in 2000, when the agency lowered fares and demand skyrocketed.

But records and interviews show that Metro managers did little to address warnings about drivers and riders committing fraud and failed to take recommended steps to control costs or safeguard the program from abuse.

Metro has long cited statistics provided by LogistiCare, the company that operates the program for 14,000 riders, that the vast majority of rides were on time. And based on those statistics, Metro has paid millions of dollars in performance bonuses to the company.

But until recently LogistiCare's contract contained a gaping loophole: Trips where drivers didn't show up at all weren't included in the statistics and didn't count against the company when it came to getting on-time performance bonuses. Metro also had no effective way to verify LogistiCare's numbers, according to the program's former manager at the agency.

MetroAccess is the subject of a Montgomery County grand jury investigation into allegations of criminal fraud, court documents show.

And a group of passengers has sued, claiming that service is so unreliable, it violates the Americans With Disabilities Act.

LogistiCare executives say they strived to provide good service but have faced challenges, including Metro's failure to buy enough vehicles to keep up with demand and the agency's reluctance to ban customers who make reservations but fail to show up.

Metro Chief Executive Richard A. White said he has taken a number of steps to correct the problems, including renegotiating LogistiCare's contract in March to add language to prevent fraud and improve service.

DISTANCE | Going the Extra Mile The more than 500 runners who completed Chicago's Lakeshore Marathon on May 30 are now getting word that the course was mistakenly set at 27.2 miles — a full mile longer than the traditional marathon distance. "It's hard for me to fathom how someone can get the most basic element of a race wrong," participant Hugh Mainard said. Organizer Mark Cihlar apologized, blaming last-minute adjustments to the course. (AP) EyeOpeners | Page 2

BREAD

Fred the Baker Claims Innocence

Four sliced bagels were left last week in the yard of Fountain, Colo., councilman Al Lender—grandson of Lender's Bagels founder Harry Lender—some bearing messages that said "Burn, Lender" and

"Recall Bagel Boy." Lender has been at the center of controversy recently and is facing a recall election; earlier this year, he said he once served time in prison for selling cocaine in Connecticut. Lender said he believes the incident was politically motivated. "It's a hate thing," said Lender, whose dog was briefly ill after eating one of the bagels. (AP)

Today's Essay: 'My Bank Account # Is...'

A Winter Haven, Fla., community college professor was arrested Friday on charges of using students' names and Social Security numbers to obtain department store credit cards. Bradley Neil Slosberg had asked students from his anatomy and physiology class to write their names and Social Security numbers on a sign-in sheet, students said. "We all signed it," Amanda Bracewell said. "We figured, 'He's a teacher, what is he going to do with it?'" Slosberg and his girlfriend, Deborah Hafner, then stole the identities of at least three students, police said. Hafner then filled out the credit card applications and committed the forgeries, police said. (AP)

Monsoon Wedding

Here comes the bride, all dressed in slime. In accordance with Indian mythology, two frogs were "married" Sunday in a ceremony that residents of Khochakandar, India, hope will bring a good monsoon season. The male and female frogs were placed side-by-side for the wedding, with vermilion applied to the female. The monsoon season is crucial to agriculture, which two-thirds of India's population relies on to earn a living. (EXPRESS)

STUNTS

Your Love Is Lifting Me Higher ...

Two Nepalese climbers were on top of the world Monday—not only because they reached the top of Mount Everest, but because they got married there, in what was believed to be the first wedding on the summit. Bride Moni Mulepati, 24, and groom Pem Dorjee, 23, exchanged their vows at 29,035 feet after scaling the peak with 45 other climbers. Temperatures at the summit were biting cold and the weather treacherous, so they had to make the ceremony quick. "We were there only for 10 minutes, just enough for us to get married and our friends to take pictures of us," said the bride. (AP)

WASHINGTON

Frist, Reid Agree to Move Forward on Judicial Picks

After months of arguing, the Senate will try to confirm as many as four of President Bush's nominations to the U.S. Appeals Court in the next week or so, including California judge Janice Rogers Brown and former Alabama Attorney General William Pryor. Senate Majority Leader Bill Frist, R-Tenn., and Senate Minority Leader Harry Reid, D-Nev., announced agreements on Monday to move forward on those two as well as the nominations of Richard Griffin and David McKeague. Man Sentenced to Prison For Killing Wife as She Slept

Saying he is "tormented every waking minute by what I did," a Utah man was sentenced Monday to six years to life in prison for shooting his wife to death as she slept a year ago. Judge Denise Lindberg listened to emotional testimony before handing down the only sentence she could under Utah law. She said only the parole board could determine how long Mark Hacking will stay in prison, but that she will recommend that he be held "a very long time." (AP)

Court Backs Federal Marijuana Law

Justices: State statutes don't protect medical users from prosecution

WASHINGTON | People who smoke marijuana because their doctors recommend it to ease pain can be prosecuted for violating federal drug laws, the Supreme Court ruled Monday, overriding medical marijuana statutes in 10 states.

The court's 6-3 decision was filled with sympathy for two seriously ill California women who brought the case, but the majority agreed that federal agents may arrest even sick people who use the drug as well as the people who grow pot for them.

Plaintiff Angel Raich checks on cannabis buds in her Oakland, Calif., home.

Justice John Paul Stevens, an 85-year-old cancer survivor, said the court was not passing judgment on the potential medical benefits of marijuana, and he noted "the troubling facts" in the case. However, he said the Constitution allows federal regulation of homegrown marijuana as interstate commerce.

The women who brought the case, Angel Raich and Diane Monson, expressed defiance.

"I'm just going to keep doing what I'm doing. I don't really have a choice but to, because if I stop using cannabis, I would die," said Raich, who suffers from several ailments, including a brain tumor.

The ruling does not strike down California's law, or similar ones in nine other states. However, it may hurt efforts to pass laws in other states because the federal government's prosecution authority trumps states' wishes. GINA HOLLAND (AP)

9/11 Panel Opens Review

WASHINGTON | Overlapping responsibilities among U.S. intelligence agencies could lead to failures in assessing terror threats, experts said Monday in examining changes at the CIA and FBI since the Sept. 11, 2001, attacks.

Part of the problem stems from the continued lack of a reliable information-sharing system within the intelligence community, according to panelists led by a member of the 9/11 Commission that investigated missteps leading to the attacks.

"There's a real vulnerability," former Attorney General Richard Thornburgh said during the two-hour discussion — the first of eight panels hosted this summer by the commission.

The panel discussions will culminate July 25 with a privately financed report card on how the government has responded to the recommendations the 10-member bipartisan commission issued last summer.

Monday's panel focused on reforms at the CIA and the FBI's counterterror unit to prevent future attacks. Though experts said both agencies have made progress, they agreed many more steps need to be taken. LARA JAKES JORDAN (AP)

Wash. Judge Upholds Vote

Court rejects GOP challenge to results of close governor's race

WENATCHEE, WASH. | A judge Monday upheld Democrat Christine Gregoire's victory in the closest race for governor in U.S. history, rejecting Republican claims that last fall's election was stolen through errors and fraud.

The election — decided by an amazingly close 129 votes out of 2.9 million cast — included 1,678 illegally cast ballots, Chelan County Superior Court Judge John Bridges found. But he said Republicans failed to prove that GOP candidate Dino Rossi would have won if those votes had been disregarded.

The judge threw out a few illegally cast votes and raised Gregoire's margin of victory to 133.

VICTORY HUG: Lawyers for the Democratic party celebrate after hearing the ruling in the gubernatorial election challenge trial in Wenatchee, Wash., on Monday.

Gregoire, who has held office for five months under a cloud of uncertainty, said she burst into tears upon hearing the news.

The Republicans were hoping the judge would nullify the election and then either declare Rossi the winner outright or open the way for a new election in the fall.

"We're obviously disappointed in the ruling," Rossi spokeswoman Mary Lane said. REBECCA COOK (AP)

Ex-Professor's Terror Aid Trial Opens

TAMPA, FLA. | A former professor at a Florida university was a fund-raising powerhouse in a pro-Palestinian terror cell blamed for scores of suicide attacks in Israel, a prosecutor said Monday as the man's trial began.

Sami Al-Arian was at one time "the most powerful man in the world" in the Palestinian Islamic Jihad, federal prosecutor Walter E. Furr III told jurors in his opening statement.

Nahla Al-Arian, wife of former professor Sami Al-Arian, walks by demonstrators at the Tampa, Fla., courthouse.

Al-Arian, a former University of South Florida computer science instructor who was fired after his arrest, has been in jail for more than two years. He shook his head from side to side at times as Furr spoke.

Prosecutors allege Al-Arian and his co-defendants used an Islamic academic think tank and a Palestinian charity as fund-raising fronts for the PIJ, which is on a State Department list of terrorist organizations. MITCH STACY (AP)

Study Links Teen Body Image to Suicidal Impulses

CHICAGO | Suicidal impulses and attempts are much more common in teenagers who think they are too fat or too thin, regardless of how much they actually weigh, a study found.

Using actual body size based on teens' reports of their height and weight, the researchers found that overall, overweight or underweight teens were only slightly more likely than normal-weight teens to have suicidal tendencies.

But teens who perceived themselves at either weight extreme — very fat or really skinny — were more than twice as likely as normal-weight teens to attempt or think about suicide.

Because nearly half of the students surveyed saw themselves as too thin or too heavy, "these results suggest that a sizable proportion of students may be at increased risk" for suicide, the researchers said.

The findings appear in the June issue of Archives of Pediatrics & Adolescent Medicine. (AP)

the Honolulu Marathon.

A Training Program For Everyone

The National AIDS Marathon Training Program is a six-month program geared to both beginners and experienced runners. We start with three miles of running and walking, and then gradually increase the distance. Many of our participants are first-time marathoners. Some have never run a step in their lives. But 98% of those who complete the program complete the marathon.

Each weekend, you'll train with your "pace group" – other runners who share your same level of conditioning, whether fast or slow. It's a great way to get fit, have fun, and make a tremendous difference in the fight to end AIDS. It may be the best thing you do this year, and your life will never be the same.

Guided Fundraising

AIDS is now the leading cause of death worldwide among all people aged 15 to 59. Here in Washington, DC, the rate of new AIDS cases is twelve times the national average. The money you raise will allow Whitman-Walker Clinic to provide direct medical care, food, and other vital AIDS services – to keep people alive until there's a cure.

In the past seven years, we've helped 17,000 people nationwide raise more than $55 million to support people living with HIV/AIDS. We'll be there to help you every step of the way. You'll be surprised at how willing people are to support you. All you have to do is ask.

Iraqis Net 900 In Sweep

Government touts results from massive crackdown in Baghdad

BAGHDAD | The Iraqi government announced Monday that it detained nearly 900 suspected militants in a two-week sweep that appears to have somewhat blunted attacks.

More than 840 people have died in the violence since the government was announced April 28, but the daily death toll has fallen slightly in the past three days.

The latest figures released from Operation Lightning, which began May 22 in Baghdad, included at least 887 arrests and the establishment around Baghdad of 608 mobile and 194 permanent checkpoints. Also, 38 weapon stores were raided.

The operation is the biggest Iraqi-led offensive since Saddam Hussein's ouster two years ago. Before it began, authorities controlled only eight of Baghdad's 23 entrances. Now all are under government control.

According to a list obtained Monday, Saddam will be tried on alleged war crimes ranging from gassing thousands of Kurds and suppressing a Shiite uprising to executing religious and political foes during his 23-year reign. (AP)

Hezbollah Basking After Lebanon Vote

BEIRUT, LEBANON | Hezbollah's electoral victory in south Lebanon gives the militant group more muscle to strongly rebuff international calls to lay down its weapons and become a purely political party.

The United States and Israel responded with concern to results from Sunday's voting. White House press secretary Scott McClellan noted Monday the U.S. focus had been on making sure Lebanese elections were free, but reiterated that Hezbollah must be disarmed.

The face of Hezbollah's leader adorns a tapestry in southern Lebanon Monday.

"Hezbollah, as you are well aware, is a terrorist organization," he said in the first U.S. response to the voting.

The strong endorsement at home, however, gave Hezbollah what it sought: a popular mandate that flies in the face of U.S. and U.N. demands for it to disarm.

Hezbollah and the Shiite Amal movement, which shared the ticket, won all 17 of the contested seats by a wide margin, Interior Minister Hassan Sabei said. The ticket also took six unchallenged seats.

Sudan to Defy Probe Of Darfur

International court says it will investigate charges of war crimes

THE HAGUE, NETHERLANDS | The International Criminal Court said Monday it had begun investigating alleged war crimes in Sudan's Darfur region, where an estimated 180,000 people have died and 2 million have been displaced since the conflict began in 2003.

The court has a list of 51 potential suspects named by a special U.N. investigative commission, which concluded in January that crimes against humanity had occurred in Darfur.

The government in Khartoum indicated it would not cooperate with the probe. Hasan Abdin, Sudan's ambassador to London, told the BBC that his country "will not hand in any Sudanese citizen accused of committing crimes in Sudan to be tried outside of Sudan."

A failure by Khartoum to cooperate with the court could result in economic sanctions, human rights groups said.

Darfur's crisis erupted when rebels took up arms because of what they considered years of state neglect and discrimination against Sudanese of African origin. The government is accused of responding with a counterinsurgency campaign in which ethnic Arab militia committed wide-scale abuses against ethnic Africans.

Death Knell for EU Treaty?

Outlook bleak after Britain holds off on vote

LONDON | Britain shelved a referendum on the European Union constitution Monday, following the charter's rejection by French and Dutch voters. The development strongly suggests the treaty cannot survive in its current form, and removes a major complication for Tony Blair.

Foreign Secretary Jack Straw

told the House of Commons that Britain reserves "the right to bring back the European Union bill providing for a U.K. referendum should circumstances change."

"But we see no point in proceeding at this moment," he said. "These referendum results raise profound questions about the future direction of Europe," said Straw.

Blair

Across Europe, many people saw the British announcement as a final nail in the coffin of the EU charter. "Jack Straw now has shut off the respirator," said Villy Soevndal, the leader of Denmark's small left-wing Socialist People's Party. "The charter already was in a coma after the French and Dutch 'nos.'"

Blair — whose political position was weakened by an election that returned him to office but halved his parliament majority — is now spared the difficult task of having to sell the constitution to the British people.

According to an ICM survey for the BBC2's Newsnight program, 64 percent of Britons would have voted against the treaty — a result that would certainly have undermined Blair's authority and perhaps forced him to resign. ED JOHNSON (AP)

Benedict Issues Forceful Rebuke of Gay Marriage

Pope says same-sex unions are expressions of 'anarchic freedom'

ROME | Pope Benedict XVI condemned same-sex unions as anarchic "pseudo-matrimony" on Monday.

Benedict repeatedly referred to marriage as a union between a man and a woman in an address to a conference of the Diocese of Rome on the role of the family.

He said matrimony wasn't just a "casual sociological construction" that changed in certain times in history, but rather an institution that had its roots "in the most profound essence of the human being."

"The various forms of the dissolution of matrimony today, like free unions, trial marriages and going up to pseudo-matrimonies by people of the same sex, are rather expressions of an anarchic freedom that wrongly passes for true freedom of man," he said.

Benedict, a former cardinal, spearheaded a campaign by the Vatican against same-sex unions in 2003, issuing guidelines for Catholic politicians to oppose laws granting legal rights to gay couples. (AP)

Maoist Rebels Blamed in Attack on Bus That Kills 38

Suspected rebels detonated a bomb beneath a crowded bus crossing a wooden bridge in Nepal's rural south

Soldiers examine the huge crater left by the blast, one of the bloodiest attacks on civilians since the insurgency began.

GOPAL CHITRAKAR/REUTERS

Monday, officials said, killing at least 38 people and wounding the other 71 passengers on board in one of the bloodiest attacks against civilians since an insurgency broke out nearly a decade ago. An initial investigation showed a rebel hiding behind a tree used a wire to remotely trigger the bomb, army officials said.

The army said it was certain the explosion was detonated by Maoist rebels fighting since 1996 to abolish Nepal's constitutional monarchy and set up a communist state. (AP)

Arson Suspect Enters Guilty Plea

Thomas Sweatt faces life sentence for fires that killed 2 people

GREENBELT, MD. | The suspect in nearly 50 arsons in the Washington area pleaded guilty Monday to murder and other federal charges, ending an ordeal that kept the Washington area on edge for more than two years.

Thomas Sweatt, 50, admitted in U.S. District Court to first-degree murder in the death of Lou Edna Jones, 86, who died of smoke inhalation from a fire in her Northeast Washington home in June 2003. Sweatt also pleaded guilty to second-degree murder charges in the death of Annie Brown, 91. She died of smoke inhalation a few days after Sweatt set fire to her next door neighbor's Northeast Washington home Feb. 5, 2002.

The fire that killed Brown was separate from the list of 45 fires that Sweatt admitted setting between March 2003 and December 2004.

Under a plea agreement, prosecutors in Montgomery and Prince George's counties in Maryland, Arlington and Fairfax counties in Virginia and the City of Alexandria, Va., agreed not to bring charges against Sweatt for other arsons.

Sweatt faces a minimum mandatory life sentence when he returns to U.S. District Court on Sept. 12. He could also get an extra 300 years in prison for 15 charges stemming from the seven fires prosecutors chose to charge him with. There is no parole in the federal system.

CitiFinancial Loses Data

Records of 3.9 million customers lost while in route to credit bureau

NEW YORK | CitiFinancial, the consumer finance division of Citigroup Inc., said Monday it has begun notifying some 3.9 million U.S. customers that computer tapes containing data about their accounts — including Social Security numbers and payment histories — have been lost.

New York-based Citigroup said the tapes were lost by the courier UPS Inc. in transit to a credit bureau.

The bank said the tapes contained information about both active and closed accounts at CitiFinancial's branch network. It said they did not contain information from CitiFinancial Auto, CitiFinancial Mortgage or any other Citigroup business.

The statement said that CitiFinancial "had no reason to believe that this information has been used inappropriately, nor has it received any reports of unauthorized activity."

Kevin Kessinger, executive vice president of Citigroup's Global

Consumer Group, said the bank's letter encouraged consumers to review activity on all their accounts to make sure nothing suspicious was occurring. He said CitiFinancial also was arranging for all affected customers to sign up free of charge with a credit monitoring service for 90 days. And, he said, if a customer is victimized, they will get free help from Citigroup's Identity Theft resolution service.

Customers who are concerned about identity theft should visit the local CitiFinancial branch, or call 866-452-2484. EILEEN ALT POWELL (AP)

Washington Mutual to Buy Providian for $6.45B

SAN FRANCISCO | Washington Mutual Inc., the nation's largest savings and loan, said Monday it is expanding into the credit card business by buying Providian Financial Corp., a once-troubled lender that bounced back from the brink of failure to become a prime takeover target.

Seattle-based Washington Mutual initially valued the stock-and-cash deal at $6.45 billion, or $18.71 per share — a modest 4 percent above Providian's closing price last week.

Washington Mutual, with total assets of $308 billion, had been preparing to launch its own credit card early next year before concluding it made more sense to buy the expertise and existing customers of a major lender like Providian, which ranks among the 10 largest issuers with 9.4 million account holders and $18 billion in loans. In Seismic Shift, Apple Turns to Intel

Computers to use chips that power Windows PCs

SAN FRANCISCO | After years of touting its Macintosh computers as superior alternatives, Apple Computer Inc. said Monday that it would switch to the very Intel microprocessors that power machines designed to run Microsoft Windows.

Though the long-rumored transition will help the Mac compete against Windows PCs in performance and — potentially — price, the move poses big challenges for Apple, its developers and users. In fact, past Mac chip changes have led to significant market share losses.

Apple now must persuade current users and potential buyers that today's Macs will not become the technology equivalent of lame ducks. And it must get software companies to develop programs that work on both the Macs of today and of tomorrow.

In a speech to software developers Monday, Apple CEO Steve Jobs admitted the change will not be fast or easy. The first Intel-based Macs won't appear until 2006, and the full product line won't shift to Intel until the following year, he said. (AP)

Euro Climbs Back After 'No' Votes

FRANKFURT, GERMANY | The euro rose against the dollar Monday, eroding gains the U.S. currency made after French and Dutch voters rejected the proposed EU constitution and as Britain said it would delay its own referendum on the document.

The 12-nation currency bought $1.2276 in late New York trading, up from $1.2217 Friday and up more than 1 cent from its eight-month low last week of $1.2158.

The euro slumped after the 'no' votes in referendums in France and the Netherlands clouded the EU's future. Some officials even suggested national currencies replaced by the euro could return.

The euro had been robust against the dollar, rising to an all-time high of $1.3667 at the end of last year before slowly slipping. (AP)

Barmes won't carry groceries for a while.

BASEBALL Barmes Breaks Collarbone While Carrying Groceries

Colorado Rockies rookie Clint Barmes is expected to miss at least three months after breaking his left collarbone in a fall while carrying groceries up the stairs in his apartment building. Barmes, a shortstop leading National League rookies in most offensive categories, will have surgery Tuesday and isn't expected to return until at least August. Even after a mild slump, he was still leading NL rookies in hitting (.329), runs (40), hits (74), doubles (16), home runs (8) and RBIs (34) heading into Monday's game. (AP)

BASEBALL Arizona Cools Off Philly

Shawn Green put an emphatic end to Philadelphia's six-game winning streak, driving in four runs in the Arizona Diamondbacks' 10-8 victory over the Phillies Monday. Arizona scored five times in the first inning off Cory Lidle (5-4) and snapped a five-game losing streak — improving to 15-15 on the road. (AP)

Redskins Keep Taylor Out

Washington responds to arrest by excusing safety from offseason

REDSKINS | After months of practically begging Sean Taylor to report to work, the Washington Redskins are now telling him to stay away.

Taylor's latest legal trouble, a felony charge of aggravated assault with a firearm in Miami, led the Redskins on Monday to issue a statement excusing the safety from the rest of the team's offseason meetings and practices.

Taylor turned himself in Saturday after a three-day search. Police said Taylor pointed a gun at an unidentified person Wednesday during a dispute over two vehicles he claimed were stolen. Taylor also punched one person, according to the police statement, leading to a second charge of simple battery.

Taylor, 22, is free on $16,500 bond with an arraignment date scheduled for June 24. His football career is in serious jeopardy if he is convicted of the felony charge: It carries a minimum sentence of three years.

Taylor has been the only unexcused absentee from the Redskins voluntary offseason workout program and has not returned phone calls from coach Joe Gibbs, who several times expressed disappointment that Taylor was not participating. Now, Taylor needn't bother.

"We have informed Sean's agent that, as of today, Sean is excused from participating in the remainder of the club's voluntary offseason workout program and the upcoming mandatory minicamp," the Redskins statement said.

The statement also said that the team will discuss any further action with NFL officials, who wait until the legal process is completed before disciplining a player. JOSEPH WHITE (AP)

Stadium Vote Dims N.Y. Olympic Bid

OLYMPICS | New York City's bid to host the 2012 Summer Olympics suffered a setback Monday when a powerful state board rejected critical public funding for a $2 billion stadium on Manhattan's West side.

The financing board failed to approve $300 million in state money for the stadium that would also serve as home to the New York Jets. The plan, which needed unanimous approval from the three-member board, received only one vote.

New York is in competition with Paris, London, Madrid and Moscow for the 2012 Games. Earlier Monday, the International Olympic Committee released a report ranking Paris highest among the finalists.

The state board could reconsider the issue again later. But without the support of member Sheldon Silver — the state Assembly Speaker who came out against the plan less than an hour before vote was taken — the state funding cannot move forward. "If we don't have a stadium, we cannot get the Olympics," Mayor Michael Bloomberg said. (AP)

HONORS: The Nats' Nick Johnson, who hit a league-high .545 between May 30 and June 5, was named co-NL player of the week with St. Louis' Albert Pujols.

Nats: 'We're Here to Stay'

Confidence level matches first-place standing

NATIONALS | Not one to let a perceived slight pass, Washington Nationals manager Frank Robinson has ribbed reporters from local newspapers this season, asking why their baseball standings were listing tied clubs alphabetically, instead of putting the home team in front.

Well, on Monday morning, every sports section in the country had "Washington" atop the NL East, the latest in any season since 1933 that a major league team representing the city was in first place.

Despite a slew of injuries and few household names on a $47 million payroll, the Nationals have morphed from the last-place Montreal Expos into a first-place team that wins the close ones, erases deficits night after night and talks about contending in a division where everyone is over .500.

"It's not a swagger. It's a quiet confidence: Believe in yourself and believe in your teammates," Robinson said.

A week ago, Washington came home from a 2-7 road trip. It responded by taking three of four games from Atlanta, then sweeping three from Florida, after trailing in every game in the series.

"We definitely want to send a message to the rest of the NL East," outfielder Ryan Church said, "that we're here to stay."

Overall, Washington trailed in 21 of 31 victories. Plus, the club is excelling in what Robinson calls "Tums and Roloids games," going 12-7 when the margin is one run.

"Those are the kind of wins that pump you up and build confidence," third baseman Vinny Castilla said. "They tell you right there: We can do it." HOWARD FENDRICH (AP)

Jackson Takes His 'Dream' Job at Howard

COLLEGE HOOPS | Calling the job "a dream come true for me," Gil Jackson was introduced as the new head coach of the Howard men's basketball team Monday.

Jackson spent the last 16 years as an assistant to Fran Dunphy at Penn, and now gets to be a college head coach for the first time.

"You're happy when someone gives you a chance to lead their program," he said. "There are not a lot of opportunities out there, especially in Division I."

Jackson noted the strong academic tradition at Howard and the school's reputation among African-Americans as reasons why he wanted to come to D.C. "You can see the pride when you walk around Howard, when you talk to Howard alumni," he said. "I hope that pride will show when we play, when we participate and represent Howard." JONATHAN TANNENWALD

NOSTALGIA TV: The debut of NBC's "Hit Me Baby One More Time" was, well, a hit. CBS' juggernaut, "CSI" won ratings gold last Thursday night, but "Hit Me," featuring has-beens such as Tiffany, left, Air Supply and Flock of Seagulls, finished a respectable second.

Voices From the Dark

'Live From Iraq' raps honestly about war by those who know

FOREIGN MUSIC | As Staff Sgt. Terrance Staves dodged bullets recovering a burned-out Humvee in Baghdad's Sadr City, he heard a rocket-powered grenade zooming toward him. All he could do was hold his breath when it crashed into the armored Bradley vehicle sitting just feet in front of him.

Back at camp, Staves vented his anger and fear by spitting rap lyrics.

Some of those lyrics were used on "Live From Iraq," an album he and a few other Fort Hood soldiers wrote, recorded and produced while on a one-year deployment in Iraq.

On the 15-track album, soldiers voice frustration at what they call shabby equipment and the lack of support they feel from the American public. The album vigorously defends soldiers charged with crimes for actions committed during the conflict.

"I was outside the gate a lot and had a lot of stuff happen to me," said Staves, 26, of Houston, Texas. "So for me to ... be able to get in the booth and let all my anger out was wonderful."

RAPPING THROUGH THE PAIN: The soldiers/musicians on "Live From Iraq" used music to help deal with their fear and anger.

The group, led by Sgt. Neal "Big Neal" Saunders, includes Sgt. Edward "Greg-O" Gregory, Staves, Spc. Michael "Paperboi" Davis, Sgt. Ronin Clay and Spc. Michael Thomas.

The album opens with "The Deployment," a heartbreaking tale of the moments before they left and their emotions as they approached Iraq. Another track, "Holdin' My Breath," discusses how they conceal the horrors of war from their families.

Staves said some people told them no one would buy a rap album about Iraq.

"I told them it's not about the money. It's about the music."

KRISTIE RIEKEN (AP)

"Live From Iraq" can be purchased from www.4th25.com and samples of it heard at www.cdbaby.com.

Country Solid as a Rock

Dierks Bentley uses traditionalism to find his distinctive sound

MUSIC | One of the more salutary developments of late in country music is the growing number of artists succeeding with throw-back style, a list on which Dierks Bentley clearly belongs.

Bentley broke through with a resounding twang when his 2003 major-label debut yielded the chart-topper "What Was I Thinkin'," and he returns in equally stalwart fashion with "Modern Day Drifter" (Capitol Records Nashville), a strong assortment of meat-and-potatoes tunes sold with just enough spice.

The material marries conventional hillbilly sentiments, such as the vehicular tribute "Cab of My Truck," to music that draws substantial vigor from energetic fills.

Soaring pedal-steel guitar decorates the chugging ramble "Lot of Leavin' Left to Do" and the high-octane kiss-off "So So Long" tacks a sweet fiddle line onto its rolling, down-home groove.

Bentley's vocal approach is rough enough to handle the rousing brew call "Domestic, Light and Cold," but sufficiently flexible to nestle alongside mandolin on Del McCoury's "Good Man Like Me."

The reflective title track and the straightforward seduction tune "Come a Little Closer" are convincing and earnest, but the steady traditionalism is the most impressive bit of sincerity the collection offers. THOMAS KINTNER

(THE HARTFORD COURANT)

RAMBLING MAN: Bentley is less intent on tearing up the honky-tonk this time.

Getting Back on Fame's Ride

Backstreet Boys become men with a grown-up pop record

HARMONY | Is there life beyond the boy-band phenomenon? The Backstreet Boys are on a mission to prove there is.

"Never Gone," due June 14, is the first studio album from the multi-platinum act in nearly five years. After worldwide success, group members Brian Littrell, Howie Dorough, Kevin Richardson, Nick Carter and A.J. McLean decided to take a hiatus. "We had been going on a nonstop pace for over eight years," Dorough said. "It was taking its toll on the relationships in the group."

When they got back in the studio, they first found themselves exploring a different sound. "It actually started off in an R&B direction about a year-and-a-half ago," Dorough said. But it morphed into a pop album as the group worked with a slew of top producers, including Max Martin, Mark Taylor, Billy Mann, John Ondrasik, Dan Muckala and John Shanks.

Muckala produced the first single, "Incomplete," which has been welcomed at pop radio despite some initial skepticism.

The album features the act's trademark harmonies, but "we've stripped it down and kept it more organic," Dorough said. "It's not all five-part harmony like everything used to be. It's like Backstreet Boys meets Matchbox Twenty meets Maroon 5 meets Coldplay."

To give fans a glimpse of the new album, the group hit the road. This summer the group will embark on a tour of amphitheatres and hit the stadiums next year.

BACKSTREET'S BACK ALL RIGHT: Backstreet Boys claim to be relaxed about prospects of "Never Gone," considering the world thought it had heard the last of them.

Weiss feels the summer tour will help reconnect the group with pop fans. "There's an underserved audience," he said.

The group, label and management have high hopes for the record, but they are realistic. Wright said, "If our album doesn't enter at No. 1, are people going to think we're off the mark? Well, no, because people had written us off anyway."

Littrell is optimistic about the group's future. "I know that there's an audience out there for us," he said. "I've really determined that our audience is still there."

6 Months, Smooth Waters

Brian Williams is settling into his new NBC anchor seat

BROADCAST NEWS | Brian Williams let last week's minor milestone of six months since replacing Tom Brokaw as NBC's chief anchor go unnoticed.

"Until your phone call," Williams said, "I had not realized the anniversary was upon me."

They have been six months of extraordinary change in the evening news after two decades of stability. Dan Rather stepped down, and the "CBS Evening News" was revamped when Bob Schieffer took over. Peter Jennings announced he has lung cancer, and he hasn't been on ABC in two months. Yet there has been little obvious difference in viewing patterns. Given a chance to try something new, few people have bothered.

The pecking order is the same as it was during the final months of the Brokaw-Jennings-Rather triumvirate: NBC first, ABC a close second and CBS an increasingly distant third.

CBS is the only network to significantly change the way it delivers the news, and it's likely this is only the start with executives considering a multiple-anchor format. ABC has emphasized how it is still doing Jennings' broadcast, only without Jennings. And while Williams' reporting may skew toward veterans or U.S. history — two areas he's interested in — "Nightly News" is structured the same way it was with Brokaw.

"Remember," Williams said, "part of my pledge was not to change what was working."

Jennings' illness has meant that lately, Williams has been the dean of network evening anchors. "A friend of mine said recently that calling me the dean of network anchors is a lot like saying the Empire State Building is the tallest building in New York," he said. "It's [true] for all the wrong reasons." DAVID BAUDER (AP)

The effort heats up to add more women to firefighting ranks

She is a Coast Guard reservist and a veteran of Ground Zero duty the morning the World Trade Center collapsed. Yet even Adrienne Walsh was resented by male firefighters who didn't want women alongside them.

This past year, Walsh became the first woman on one of New York's elite fire department rescue companies. Within five weeks, she transferred, saying members had ostracized her. Now at another company, Walsh said she is frustrated by slow change in a profession where women remain a tiny minority. "You've got to show people you want them," Walsh said.

Nationwide, there is cause for both celebration and dismay about the status of female firefighters. Of roughly 296,000 professional firefighters, about 6,500, less than 2.5 percent, are women. That's up from zero as of 1972, but "nowhere near the point where you lose your token status," said Women in the Fire Service director Terese Floren.

Firefighting forces are more than 10 percent female in several big cities; some, such as San Francisco, also have woman fire chiefs. But in Boston and Philadelphia, barely 1 percent of firefighters are female. New York has only 29 women out of more than 11,000 firefighters, less than 0.3 percent.

Elsewhere, female firefighters have complained of gender-related bias and harassment. "Firefighting is the last big macho stronghold," said Maureen McFadden of advocacy group Legal Momentum. "As a society, we keep holding steadily to the notion of the brawny, mustachioed firefighter, even though TRAILBLAZERS: Hoboken's Audra Carter and Maria Diaz — firefighters since 2002.

Trials by Fire

physicality is less important to the job than it used to be."

No major fire department embodies a new approach to gender more than San Francisco's, where 230 of the 1,700 firefighters are women, including chief Joanne Hayes-White. "The fire service is very rich in tradition, and I embrace that, but only to the point where it doesn't get in the way of moving toward the future," she said.

Among states with low numbers

“As a society, we keep holding steadily to the notion of the brawny, mustachioed firefighter.”

MAUREEN MCFADDEN
OF LEGAL MOMENTUM

of female firefighters is New Jersey; the last official count in 2002 showed only 19 women among nearly 6,000 career firefighters. The number now is believed to be under 30.

But attitudes are changing. In Elizabeth, a firehouse is being built with a women's bathroom and locker room, though the 262-member force is all male.

In Hoboken, Audra Carter and Maria Diaz were hired in December 2002 as the first female firefighters in all of Hudson County. They laugh at how their arrival was preceded by sensitivity training for their 120 male colleagues.

"The guys were walking on eggshells," told not to curse or do anything like flirting, said Diaz. "But after six months, they were like, 'Hey, the girls are just like us,'" she said.

In New York, Walsh and her female colleagues have urged the department to equip more firehouses with women's bathrooms and recruit more women. The city is intensifying recruitment of women but, deputy fire commissioner Douglas White said, diversification is slow because of low turnover and laws governing hiring. He noted a record number of women passed the latest firefighter physical exam.

Women's firefighter union head Anna Schermerhorn-Collins predicted about 20 of the 66 women on the hiring list may get jobs — leaving the force less than 0.5 percent female.

"It's an improvement," she said, "but still crumbs." DAVID CRARY (AP)

Michael Wilbon

Chat House

MICHAEL WILBON was online Monday to discuss Mike Tyson's upcoming fight, the Redskins' Sean Taylor and Shaquille O'Neal | washingtonpost.com/liveonline

Any word on how ticket sales for the Mike Tyson fight are going? It seems to me to be way overpriced. D.C. is not Vegas or Manhattan.

Still, it's a prize fight and people have to be paid. There are enough rich cats in D.C. to buy up the tickets. That's the culture of the fight game. It ain't summer league basketball, Holmes. Word is 13,000 or so have been sold. I can't wait to see it, even if it does last 30 seconds.

Sean Taylor shows shockingly bad judgment. Not just this recent arrest, but ever since he arrived in the league. Joe Gibbs said they vetted him like he's a Supreme Court nominee before they picked him. How'd they get it so wrong?

The question is whether they got it right but decided to hope against hope ... just take what comes. Teams often do that. They want to know, but it doesn't necessarily change their decision on draft day or when it comes time to make a trade.

Should we trade Sean Taylor's butt for value or, if that doesn't work, just cut him? I think that would send a good signal to some of these other punks on the 'Skins — even though it seems like a huge waste of talent.

You don't necessarily need to get rid of a guy at 22 because he's screwed up big-time. And he has screwed up. He might turn out to be a lifelong screw up. But we don't know that yet. The Redskins had better try to see if this kid can work out for them before they tell him to hit the road.

Will we ever see the 30-point, 20-rebound Shaq again?

Maybe next year, when he's healthy. Remember, Shaq is also 32 years old. His best days are over. He's still a great player, though ... one who can facilitate winning at a championship level. You think Miami would be in the conference finals without him? I don't pay attention to the stats as much as the impact, and Shaq still has that in abundance.

Prosecute 'Deep Throat'

WHILE I APPLAUD the exposure of the Watergate scandal and the craftsmanship of the reporters, I wholly condemn the actions of W. Mark Felt [acting as the secret source "Deep Throat"]. As a federal employee, he owes his loyalty to the people of the U.S., but he also owes loyalty to the president. Since the break-in was not endangering national security or subverting national policy, Mr. Felt should have taken his information to his bosses at the Department of Justice, and if nothing was done he could have retired and openly brought the matter to the Washington Post. I believe Mr. Felt should be prosecuted to the full extent of the law. And if his beaming family knew the facts, they, too, should be prosecuted.

Now 37, the Heroine Faces Heartbreaking Gas Prices

MOLLY RINGWALD said she's in discussions to make a sequel to 1984's "Sixteen Candles." The film made Ringwald, now 37, a teen star, but she hasn't appeared in a major role in many years. Ringwald said she had been approached repeatedly about doing a sequel, but recently read a script that she liked. "I've turned it down for years. I couldn't see how it would work," she said. "Now, it seems right." (AP)

Horoscope

By Stella Wilder

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Do your best to avoid taking irritations — petty and minor as they may be — and projecting them on loved ones who may not be patient.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) A decision that concerns finances may not be possible without some timely assistance from a good friend or trusted adviser. Don't wait; ask now.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Discipline and self-control are essential. Things may only get scattered and out of hand if you drift too far off center.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Everything is coming up roses. It matters not whether it's just dumb luck or just desserts, don't doubt your current good fortune.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Be sure to thank those who have done you a good turn — particularly a loved one who has gone out of his or her way for you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) You can handle a lot more than you think. Tap that private resource you have deep within, and start fighting back in your own way.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) Keep in mind that flirtations come in many shapes and sizes. Be careful what you ask for. You might get it — in spades.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Set your sights high. You have the potential to weave a little more excitement and glamour into your life if you're ready for it.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) If you are feeling nervous about something, not to worry; sometimes a little anxiety can help you make more careful decisions.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Don't misunderstand someone close to you. Others may be unclear because they do not know what they truly want.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) The grass is not always greener. Don't look on others with envy, but with a clear head and open mind. Give yourself credit, too.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) It's essential that you are a good listener. Your opinions are valid and valuable, but set them aside in favor of another's opinions.

GIVE
FOR MY LIFE!

R. Donald Tomasik

I wanted to write and let you know that I am eternally grateful to you for saving my life! I saw an ad for mobile ultra-sound tests for a year before actually signing up to be tested. I just had a feeling that something wasn't right; my wife kept urging me to spend the $179 and get checked for nothing else but the peace of mind. Boy, am I glad I did, it was found that I had a 5 1/2 centimeter aortic aneurysm. I was able to take my test results to my primary care physician and be referred to a specialist, Doctor Showalter, who's first question was 'how do you know you have an aneurysm?' I showed him my Healthfair test results and he smiled and said, 'those Healthfair screenings probably saved your life!' That was in February 2003 and after a successful surgery, I'm happy to say I'm in good health in 2004 and indebted to Healthfair USA for saving my life! Unfortunately our friend Connie in Vermont didn't have an opportunity to have these inexpensive tests and died of a ruptured aneurysm. We miss her and hope to see Healthfair mobile units all over the country someday. It really is necessary to have these tests since Medicare won't pay for preventative screenings and I couldn't afford to pay the hospital price! Thanks from both Marge and I for your 7 test package, it was truly an investment in my health!

I am a physician here in Charleston, SC; a very skeptical one at that. I have been seeing your ads in the newspaper of your cardiac and vascular screenings, and have to say I was the first to shout "scam artist". I started getting patients showing me this ad and asking my opinion. Instead of answering them with my first thought, I decided to check into your organization myself and do some research. With the cost of healthcare these days I was very concerned of the legitimacy of your organization. The first thing I decided to do was make an appointment for myself and see it from the inside. I also needed the help of others to compose an even stronger report of findings. I then gathered 11 other family members and colleagues to do your studies. I scheduled various appointments for all of us throughout the month of June. I gave everyone an appointment time and asked them to report back to me of their experience and results. So for 12 of us it was off to the testing sites inside of a bus in various parking lots.

My findings were very impressive! I think your organization is an astounding service to the public! It is so nice to see people like you make this service available to the public. I commend you in this service of screenings you offer at this price, it seems impossible to do this in today's society of medical expenses. The rising cost of healthcare today makes plenty suffer and the conformities of today's managed care makes us all susceptible to the realities of our scope of care. I am now your best supporter and I will happily refer you to all of my patients, and commend you accordingly in the community!
